STOMACH MEDICINES ARE DANGEROUS

DOCTORS NOW ADVISE MAGNESIA

Just how dangerous it is to indiscriminately dose the stomach with drugs and medicines is often not realized until too late. It seems so simple to swallow a dose of some special mixture or take tablets of soda, peppermint, etc., after meals, and the folly of this drug-giving is not apparent until, perhaps years afterward, when it is found that gastric ulcers have almost eaten their way through the stomach walls. Regrets are then unavailing; it is in the early stages when indigestion, dyspepsia, heartburn, flatulence, etc., indicates excessive acidity of the stomach and fermentation of food contents that precaution should be taken. Drugs and medicines are unsuitable and often dangerous—they have little or no influence upon the harmful acid, and that is why doctors are discarding them and advising sufferers from indigestion and stomach trouble to get rid of the dangerous acid and keep the food contents bland and sweet by taking a little pure bisulphated magnesia instead. Bisulphated Magnesia is an absolutely pure anti-acid which can be readily obtained from any drug store. It is absolutely harmless, is practically tasteless and a teaspoonful taken in a glass of water or cold water after meals, will usually be found quite sufficient to instantly neutralize excessive acidity of the stomach and prevent all possibility of the food fermenting.—Adv.

The New Home Treatment for Ugly, Hairly Growths

(Boudoir Secrets)

Here is a simple, yet very effective method for removing hair and fuzz from the face, neck and arms: Cover the objectionable hairs with a paste made by mixing some water with a little powdered delectate. Leave this on for 2 or 3 minutes, then rub off, wash the skin and the hairs have vanished. No pain or inconvenience attends this treatment, but results will be certain if you are sure to get real delectate.—Adv.

Alkali Makes Soap Bad For Washing Hair

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is just plain mulsified coconut oil, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap, and beats the most expensive soaps or anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.—Adv.

Your Grandfather Had to Live on What His Community Produced

HALF a century ago, a crop failure in your grandfather's community often meant extortionate prices and hardships of self-denial. For then, each settlement was forced to exist almost entirely upon what it could raise.

But today the choice of the nation's yield is yours—fish from the Pacific, fruits from Oregon, hams from the Corn Belt—whatever your fancy dictates is brought to your table in the prime of perfection.

Even though crops may be short in your particular community, Armour, by providing a national market has made it possible for you to draw upon the country's entire supply and has thus helped keep prices at true-value levels.

Through over a score of food plants established in the centers of producing sections, through a nation-wide refrigerator car service, through nearly four hundred distributing stations, Armour gives the American farmer a constant outlet for what he has to sell.

Thus producer and consumer are brought closer. Perishable products are moved from farm to table at lowest expense, and with minimum number of transfers.

Such economic handling can only come where immense volume and highest efficiency exist as they do in the Armour organization, where wholesale saving is practiced to build still greater service.

Thus Armour's magnitude becomes of decided importance in holding down the cost of living.

For under less efficient methods, much of the food you serve today would be prohibitive in price—perhaps even impossible to secure.

Once you appreciate the significance of this, it is apparent in serving Armour products upon your home table you are most effectively serving your own best interests.
